Approval Of Minutes

Chair Banks questioned whether it mattered that the meeting date was not included in the minutes themselves, although it was in the file name. Fe Bates confirmed that the date could be added to the minutes before being posted online.

Chair Banks asked for a motion to approve the minutes as corrected.

Commissioner Megan Markle motioned to approve the minutes from the April 22, 2025 meeting. Commissioner Judy Brown seconded the motion.

The commission conducted a verbal vote, with all members voting in favor. The meeting minutes were approved as corrected.

STATUS OF FY 2024-2025 CONSTRUCTION EXCISE TAX FUND AWARD ALLOCATION

Associate Planner Leanne Wagener provided an update on the Construction Excise Tax (CET) award allocation. She reported that after the Affordable Housing Commission's recommendations were presented to City Council, the Council decided to award $380,615 to Newberg Area Habitat for Humanity to cover the gap in their project costs. The remaining funds from the $1 million allocation were awarded to the Spark project, pending legal review and confirmation of their nonprofit application status.

Wagener noted that she had reached out to the Spark representative prior to the meeting but received no updates about their nonprofit application status. She had also contacted the legal team but had not heard back yet. She mentioned that subsequent to the City Council meeting, there had been comments and a newspaper article written in the Newberg newspaper regarding the decision. At the previous night's City Council meeting, there was a strongly worded public comment reflecting concerns similar to what the Commission had previously discussed regarding the eligibility of the Spark program's application.

Wagener explained that staff had noticed discrepancies between what the Spark applicants presented at the City Council meeting and what was in their original application. She reported that the Spark team intended to use the fund monies to purchase property, which differed from the scoring criteria that looked for projects with land already secured.

The Commission engaged in an extensive discussion about their concerns regarding the Spark project and City Council's decision. These concerns included:

1. The project not meeting the minimum threshold criteria established in the scoring rubric
2. Questions about Spark's nonprofit status, which was still pending
3. The financial model that might depend on participants who don't complete the program
4. Lack of clarity about what happens if the program fails to launch or dissolves before the required 60-year affordable housing period
5. Potential spiritual formation requirements as part of the program
6. Uncertainty about the program's financial sustainability

After lengthy deliberation, the Commission decided to schedule a special work session on August 11, 2025, at 3:30 PM to draft a statement to present to City Council regarding their concerns. They discussed potentially requesting that City Council reconsider their decision or, at minimum, adding specific conditions to the grant agreement.

MOTION: Commissioner Samantha Cooley motioned to have an additional work session on August 11, 2025 at 3:30 PM to discuss a statement to make to City Council. Commissioner Brady Fale-Debusk seconded the motion.

The commission conducted a verbal vote, the motion passed unanimously.

Staff Updates

DLCD Housing Planning Assistance Grant for Newberg Housing Capacity Analysis

Leanne Wagener reported that the City Council had approved the resolution for the DLCD Housing Planning Assistance Grant application at the previous night's meeting. She explained that this grant would fund a housing capacity analysis (HCA) to assess available resources to support additional housing in Newberg. The application is due on August 4, and Newberg is high on DLCD's priority list to receive assistance.

Wagener noted that following the HCA, there would be work on a housing production strategy that would outline what will be built and how. These are state requirements, and the grant funding would provide valuable data about housing in Newberg, including deficiencies and potential solutions. This work will help inform future housing initiatives and will include affordability aspects.

Items From Commissioners

Commissioner Randy Rickert inquired about Catholic Charities, who had submitted an application in the previous round but never responded to follow-up communications. Wagener confirmed that City Manager Will had eventually made contact and learned that the group effort had dissolved, despite their robust application reflecting years of work on the concept.

Commissioners expressed disappointment that such a promising project would not move forward and hoped that someone might revive the plans in the future.

Commissioner Megan Markel suggested that commissioners hold the August 18, 2025, City Council meeting on their calendars to attend in person if available.

Work Session Meeting – August 11, 2025

The Work Session meeting was confirmed for August 11, 2025, at 3:30 PM via Zoom.

Next Standing Meeting – October 28, 2025

The next meeting was confirmed for October 28, 2025, at 4:00 PM via Zoom.

Adjournment

Chair Casey Banks adjourned the meeting at 5:58 PM.

COMPOSE A PUBLIC COMMENT REGARDING SPARK PROJECT APPROVAL TO BE PRESENTED BY THE AFH COMMITTEE AT THE NEXT CITY COUNCIL MEETING

Chair Banks explained that the purpose of the work session was to draft a statement regarding the Spark Newberg project for the upcoming City Council meeting on August 18th. She noted that it was unclear whether the statement would come from the entire Housing Commission or just individual members. Chair Banks had prepared a draft statement for the commission to review and edit.

Chair Banks shared that that the draft was currently 6.5 minutes long, while public comment was limited to 5 minutes. It was suggested either editing it down or having two commissioners split the presentation over two comment periods.

The commission proceeded to review the draft statement paragraph by paragraph, discussing edits and changes to strengthen their arguments. The statement began with an introduction explaining that the Affordable Housing Commission had previously determined that Spark Newberg did not meet eligibility requirements for funding, and they were surprised when City Council awarded the funds anyway.

Key points in the statement included:

Affordable Housing Commission

via zoom

1. Public funds are limited and grants competitive, requiring clear transparent standards. The commission felt the City Council ignored the scoring rubric they had previously approved for the commission to use.
2. Spark Newberg was legally neither a non-profit nor for-profit organization at the time of application. The commission acknowledged that City Council made their award conditional on proving 501(c)(3) status but argued a fair process would require applicants to have their legal status sorted prior to applying.
3. Because Spark Newberg did not have established legal 501(c)(3) status, the commission was unable to review their dissolution clause. The CET fund requires funded projects to provide affordable housing for at least 60 years, and it was unclear what would happen to Spark Newberg's assets if the organization dissolved or the program failed to launch.
4. Eligible applicants are required to demonstrate financial feasibility. The commission had not seen evidence that Spark had secured the additional $6 million needed to launch the program. The commissioners referenced a previous project (Peace Trail Village) that was required to prove it had secured additional funding before receiving city funds.
5. Spark Newberg intends to use the grant to purchase property but had not identified a property at the time of application. The commission argued this cast doubt on the project's viability and readiness to launch.
6. While the written application referred to rent, the verbal presentation used terms like "participant fees," which could negate the tenant-landlord relationship and affect participants' legal rights.
7. The commission expressed concern about the extensive list of program requirements (classes, meetings, unpaid internships, community service, home inspections) and wondered if participants working full-time jobs with families could realistically complete all requirements over four years.

Throughout the discussion, commissioners expressed that they felt the City Council ignored the commission's recommendation and the established scoring rubric. They emphasized the importance of process, transparency, and fairness.

The commissioners discussed whether to speak as individuals or as a commission. They ultimately decided to present the statement as coming from the four commissioners present at the work session rather than the entire commission.

After editing the statement to meet the time requirements, the commissioners discussed the logistics of presenting at the upcoming City Council meeting. Chair Banks would deliver the oral statement and also provide printed copies to council members at the meeting. Commissioner Cooley would participate remotely from Texas, and Commissioner Markel also planned to sign up to speak.

MOTION: Commissioner Cooley moved to adopt the statement to be read before City Council on behalf of the four commissioners present. Commissioner Markel seconded.

The commission conducted a verbal vote, the motion passed unanimously.

Chair Banks thanked the commissioners for their input and stated that his hope was not just to be contrarians but to improve the political process and achieve better results in the end.

The motion need not be seconded, but it is subject to discussion. At least two members present must concur for the call of the house motion to pass. If the motion is passed, then all unexcused absent members will be requested to attend or return to the meeting. The city manager will provide the administrative staff assistance necessary to compel the attendance of the unexcused absent members at the meeting. The presiding officer is authorized to recess the meeting to a
